About Us

The Office of the Federal Register (OFR) of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), and the U.S. Government Printing Office (GPO) jointly administer the FederalRegister.gov website. The OFR/GPO partnership developed this unofficial, HTML (XML-based) edition of the daily Federal Register (“Federal Register 2.0” or FR2). In the HTML edition, Federal Register documents are organized and displayed in an easier to read format; we have also added various web tools and user aids designed to help people find material relevant to their interests. We built the HTML edition of the Federal Register to make it easier for citizens and communities to understand the regulatory process and to participate in Government decision-making.

You can now find the Federal Register electronic public inspection desk for previews of documents at FederalRegister.gov and OFR.gov. The FederalRegister.gov public inspection page tracks the full cycle of an action from initial display of the manuscript version to the final formatted versions, as published on FDsys.gov and FederalRegister.gov.

See the “Legal Status” page of this website for more information on the unofficial status of this HTML edition of the Federal Register, and the process for granting it official legal status under the authority of the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register.

Mission, Authority, and Vision for Public Participation

Mission

The Office of the Federal Register informs citizens of their rights and obligations, documents the actions of Federal agencies, and provides a forum for public participation in the democratic process. Our publications provide access to a wide range of Federal benefits and opportunities for funding and contain comprehensive information about the various activities of the United States Government. In addition, we administer the Electoral College for Presidential elections and the Constitutional amendment process.

The Federal Register is updated daily by 6 a.m. and is published Monday through Friday, except Federal holidays, and consists of four types of entries.

- Presidential Documents, including Executive orders and proclamations.
- Rules and Regulations, including policy statements and interpretations of rules.
- Proposed Rules, including petitions for rulemaking and other advance proposals.
- Notices, including scheduled hearings and meetings open to the public, grant applications, administrative orders, and other announcements of government actions.
